Event Description: Holston Habitat for Humanity will sell numbered and color-coded raffle tickets online through the organization's secure web site, giving ticket purchasers the chance to win one of two children's playhouses. The playhouses will be designed and built by the construction management/engineering students at the University of Tennessee and Virginia Tech. Both universities have committed to designing and building a university-themed playhouse for this project, ready to be delivered to Holston Habitat for Humanity by June 20, 2016.

The Battle of the Habitat Playhouses raffle tickets for either the UT playhouse or the VT playhouse will be purchased only on Holston Habitat's web site. There, purchasers will provide contact information. The purchaser will receive an e-mail confirmation and a printable duplicate color-coded, numbered raffle ticket. Each day of the sale of raffle tickets, Holston Habitat for Humanity's office manager, in the presence of another Holston Habitat employee, will print one numbered orange ticket for each ticket purchased for the UT playhouse and one numbered maroon ticket for each ticket purchased for the VT playhouse, placing all orange tickets in one locked box and all maroon tickets in another locked box.

On the day of the raffle drawing, September, 10, 2016, the office manager, in the presence of another Holston Habitat employee, will place the tickets from each locked box in separate drawing cages, one for the orange tickets and one for the maroon tickets, and give each cage to Holston Habitat's Executive Director who will hold them for the Chairman of the Board of Directors, Dr. Mark Matson, who will draw the winning ticket from each cage at the office of Holston Habitat for Humanity, 100 Greenwood Lane, Kingsport, Tennessee.

The winners do not have to be present to win. Holston Habitat for Humanity will contact by telephone the two purchasers of the winning tickets on the day of the raffle drawing to inform them of their winning.
