Sir.

Information was received that Jason Hendricks, near Henderson, 8 miles beyond Jacks Creek, to the right, has 18 bales of cotton hid in the woods, and is looking for somebody to sell it for him, boasting at the same time, that he will send ~~the land~~ the money south, to support the Confederacy.—

I was also informed that one Smith, now at Medon, a partner of Mr Bowling there, who sold his tannery close by Shady Grove to Mr Tickens, acted voluntarily as guide to the Guerilla Newsham and sold at that time $500 worth of leather.—
He has still two vats full of hides there.—

PROVOST MARSHAL'S OFFICE,

BOLIVAR, Tenn., March 6th 1863.

Major M. Smith
District Provost Marshal, Jackson, Tenn.

Sir!

The information in regard to Carson Hendricks was received by one W. W. Phillips now as prisoner here, in consequence of reports made to him by widow Smith, now at Clinton, Tenn.— Phillips says the Cotton is hid 5 miles from Henderson station and the negroes on Hendricks place, would point out the place—

The report in regard to the sale of leather by Smith was made by the same W. W. Phillips, who is at present very ill at the hospital here.— Phillips offers his services as a guide as soon as he is well enough to travel, and I will send him up to Jackson if you desire it.

Respectfully
Your Obdt. servt.
