The William Waller Collection, 1927-1960, was donated to the Manuscript Division of the Tennessee State Library & Archives by Mr. Waller, senior partner in the law firm of Waller, Lansden, and Dortch.

This collection occupies 50.82 linear feet of shelf space.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The William Waller Collection, containing approximately 20,000 items and 95 volumes, contains the files of the law firm of Waller, Lansden, and Dortch et nomina diversa.

This organization, located in Nashville, Tennessee, has over the past thirty years handled the legal affairs of some of the largest and most powerful corporations in Tennessee and the South. Some of the more important accounts were the following: Cain-Sloan Company, Cherry Branch Coal Company, Consolidated Phosphate Company, Crescent Amusement Company, Caldwell & Company, Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, Southern Coach Lines, Tennessee Central Railroad, and Tennessee Products Corporation.

General items in this collection include correspondence, financial data, legal documents, labor contracts and miscellaneous data, newspaper clippings, tax data, and miscellaneous trial data – appeals, briefs, court opinions, decrees, depositions, exhibits, memoranda, orders, petitions, and pleadings.

Some of the most notable cases handled by the firm between 1927 and 1960 were the following: Nashville Trust Company, et al. v. Morris Lebeck, et al. (1951-1954) – this case involved a legal fight between two of the largest department stores in Tennessee, The Harvey Company and Cain-Sloan Company, over the lease of a strategic building location in downtown Nashville; United States v.. Crescent Amusement Company (1943-1955) – this case involved a number of suits by the federal government to break the monopoly of the Crescent Amusement Company, owner of the largest chain of movie theaters in the South; Knox County, Tennessee v.. Fourth & First National Bank, et al. (1928-1944) – this suit was brought by the Knox County Court against the Fourth & First National Bank, a part of the huge financial empire of James E. Caldwell, and involves trust irregularities by Caldwell and other officers of his various companies. Other interesting suits in the collection include a number of state and private suits against Standard Oil of Louisiana.
