BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Williamson County, Tennessee

On October 26, 1799, the Tennessee General Assembly created Williamson County, Tennessee, from land taken from Davidson County. The new county was named Williamson in honor of Dr. Hugh Williamson, a Revolutionary War Patriot from North Carolina and a signer of the United States Constitution. In 1800, Abram Maury used 109 acres of his property to lay out the county seat of Franklin. Franklin was named for Benjamin Franklin, an eighteenth century printer, scientist and politician, who was known for his discoveries in electricity and as one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Prior to the Civil War, Williamson County was one of the wealthiest counties in Tennessee. It suffered greatly during a Union occupation that lasted from 1862 to 1865. During the battle of Franklin, November 30, 1864, Confederate General John B. Hood faced off against Union General John M. Schofield. The casualty list for both sides was high with the Union Army having an estimated casualty number of 2,326 and the Confederate Army having an estimated casualty number of 6,261.

In the years since the Civil War, Williamson County has again become a very prosperous county. As proof, Williamson County was ranked as one of the fifteen wealthiest counties in the country in 2005. Williamson County has not only grown in wealth, it has also grown in population prompting the census bureau to list Williamson County as one of the 100 fastest growing counties in the United States from 2000-2005.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Williamson County (Tenn.) Records, containing approximately 2,020 items and 129 volumes, span the period 1794-1942. The majority of the items and volumes are public records with the remaining items and volumes related to private individuals and businesses within Williamson County. The collection is composed of assorted account books, bonds, broadside advertisements, correspondence, court cases, court dockets, deeds, estate papers, executions, expenditure statements, indentures, petitions, powers of attorney, promissory notes, receipts, registered voter lists, reports, right of way agreements, school inspections, speeches, tax lists and warrants. The arrangement of the collection is alphabetical by format with the exception of the oversized items and ledger books which are ordered by size.

The account books, located in boxes 6-21, contain general merchant account books, railway ledgers, telephone accounts and a bank account book. Four items of note are found within the account books. One item is an account book for the Franklin Progress (located in box 10), dated 1881. The Franklin Progress was a late 19th century Franklin, Tennessee, newspaper. Another item of note in the account books is an account book for the Nashville, Centerville and Dickson Turnpike (located in box 14). An account book for the Nashville Interurban Railway (located in box 14) and Thompson's Station (located in box 14) are also contained within the account books.

Items of note include warrants issued for things like hogs, corn and hay (located in folder 1 of box 1) and reports of the Superintendent of the County Poor Farm (located in folder 1 of box 1). J. T. Hoskins was the Superintendent of the County Poor Farm during the time span of the loose records within the collection, 1920-1922.

The County Home Demonstration Agent materials, located in folder 2 of box 1, contain narrative reports of the work of the County Demonstration Agent. These reports give insight into the development of health care and hygiene outreach programs in Williamson County. Information about the local Red Cross Chapter is also included within the narrative reports.

The court records are located in folders 3-17 of box 1, folder 1 of box 5, boxes 22-24 and box 26. It is also worth mentioning that the George Washington Campbell materials (located in folder 17 of box 2) and the George Doherty materials (located in folder 2 of box 3) contain information regarding both Mr. Campbell and Mr. Doherty. The expenditure statements (located in folder 5 of box 4) are statements regarding county roads that were under the supervision of the County Highway Commission. The R. H. Baker petition (located in folder 6 of box 4) is a petition by R. H. Baker, the Commissioner of the Department of Highways and Public Works of the State of Tennessee, against A. B.
